Call for Chapters

The co-editors and the NKUA Applied Philosophy Research Lab Press invite authors to contribute to the 3rd volume of the Hellenic-Serbian Philosophical Dialogue Series entitled Modernity and Contemporaneity, that is due for publication by the end of 2021. We welcome original manuscripts on major philosophical issues with regard to both periods, as well as contributions that discuss the philosophical continuity (or discrepancies) between them, and shed light on the key notions, ideas, and debates that shaped them.

i. Guidelines for manuscripts

Language: English.

Extent: Flexible.

Format: Manuscripts should include a short abstract (150 words max), and 5-10 keywords. Authors should also provide affiliation, (preferably, institutional) E-mail address, and ORCID iD.

Referencing: Footnotes and references should be arranged according to Chicago Manual of Style / Notes and Bibliography.

ii. Deadline

Submissions are due by October 30, 2021; no deadline extension will be given.

iii. Submission process

Manuscripts should be submitted to philosophylab@philosophy.uoa.gr with the subject heading "Modernity and Contemporaneity." Inquiries may also be directed to the same address with the same heading.

iv. Licensing, tier, copyright, indexing & abstracting

The volume will be published both in print and on-line under a Creative Commons NY-SA International License. Authors will be permitted to hold the copyright of their published manuscripts, as well as to retain unrestricted publishing rights. The volume will be assigned both on-line and print ISBNs by the National Library of Greece; the volume, as well as each chapter, will be assigned a unique CrossRef DOI, and featured in the Press' website.

The Hellenic-Serbian Philosophical Dialogue Series is published by the NKUA Applied Philosophy Research Laboratory, Department of Philosophy, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, and the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Novi Sad. The electronic publisher is the National Documentation Center.
